

Peter Leidy has been learning from people with disabilities since 1983. He is a speaker, consultant, facilitator, and improviser who focuses on personalized supports and community membership for people with disabilities. He also writes and sings songs about human serviceland and those who find themselves connected to it.

Peter works with organizations, families, and paid supporters to:

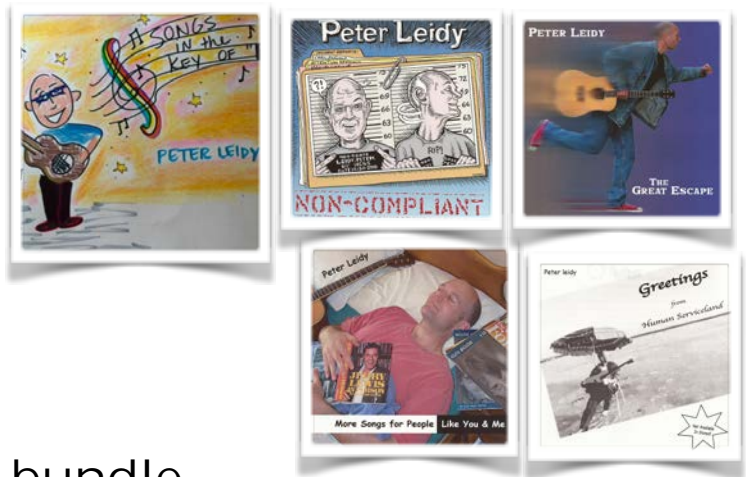

- improve teamwork and workplace morale
- rediscover the joy and meaning in our work
- promote positive support, inclusion and healthy relationships
- think differently about people who are called "challenging."

(Peter himself is known to be non-compliant at times, and can often be found exhibiting attention-seeking behavior.)
